

Accommodations for Culinary, Baking and Hospitality Students

The School of Hospitality and Culinary Arts uses a wide range of food and beverage products in our classes and labs.

We recognize that some students may have food allergies or religious or cultural food restrictions. All students are required to complete all required academic functions of the programs they are enrolled in. For some students, reasonable accommodations may be needed to meet course requirements.

The programs in The School of Hospitality and Culinary Arts do not require students with allergies or religious or cultural food restrictions to taste food, and gloves can be worn during the program. However, the College is not able to eliminate the possibility that students could inhale or otherwise be exposed to an allergen or a particular type of food.

To ensure personal safety, respect for individual rights and a reasonable path to completion, students with known food allergies or religious or cultural food restrictions should contact the appropriate department ahead of time to discuss any required accommodations.

Students with Food Allergies

Students with known food allergies are required to connect with Counselling and Accessibility Services prior to registration in any Hospitality, Culinary or Baking program. Students with a food allergy will be required to discuss and disclose any allergy related concerns that may impact their ability to proceed safely through the program. Accessibility Services can be reached at 204-945-8375.

The staff in Counselling and Accessibility Services will work with the student to move through Red River College's established accommodation processes. Students can find more information about the accommodation process at www.rrc.ca/accessibility.

Students with Religious or Cultural Food Restrictions

Students with religious or cultural food restrictions should contact the Program Chair prior to registration in any Hospitality, Culinary or Baking program to discuss their specific needs so that possible accommodations can be discussed. Students should be aware that products used in courses may not meet specific religious dietary laws.

Students should begin the accommodation process as soon as possible and at least 6 weeks before starting their specific program.

The College is committed to accommodating students in accordance with human rights legislation, our Academic Accommodation Policy and student safety as set out in our Safety Policy. In some circumstances, the College may conclude that a reasonable accommodation is not possible in view of program requirements.